Ollie - First Mate

Ollie originates from Suffolk, UK and first found his sea legs in a dinghy as a 5 year old and his land legs on a rugby pitch at school, he spent his teenage years as captain of the Sixth Form rugby team and as a racing endorsed dinghy instructor. Having left the rugby field behind to pursue his love for sailing Ollie gained work experience as a Watch Leader on a 42m classic SuperYacht in Monaco before returning to the UK.

Ollie's sailing career really took off when he was hand selected as one of fifteen sailors from the UK, under 24 years of age, to be part of the British Keelboat Academy. Here Ollie was on a national squad, receiving coaching from some of the top grand prix sailors in the world, igniting his passion for yacht racing. Whilst training at the academy Ollie started working for Oyster yachts in Ipswich as a commissioning skipper. Here he developed his skills in boat maintenance which together with his method of safe practice and customer relations allows guests to sit back and relax with peace of mind during their time on board.

Ollie has sailed over 27000 NM including 4 transatlantic crossings and holds his commercially endorsed Yacht Master Ocean qualification and STCW10.

Mel - Chef/Stew

Mel, also from Suffolk, caught the sailing bug from Ollie when she joined him for a delivery trip on an Oyster yacht from Ipswich to St Katherine's dock in London. Having achieved an Honours degree in Chemistry, Mel left her day job in the office as a scientific publishing editor and swapped cooking up potions in the lab for cooking up delights in the galley. After acquiring her STCW10 she joined Ollie to work on the water and gained experience sailing on the East Coast of England and UK and the much more tranquil surroundings of the British Virgin Islands and the Mediterranean. After gaining some additional training at Ashburton cookery school in the UK and the Crew Academy in Nice, Mel's hostessing and culinary skills were further developed complimenting her natural hospitality and love for baking.

As well as yachting, Mel has a great love for yoga and is a fully qualified instructor. Expect as much yoga as you would like on board or on the beach as she is always itching to get on the mat and pass on her knowledge and energy to others. Mel has experience in teaching clients of all ages and enjoys guiding both beginners and experienced guests through their yoga practice.
